STUDENT INTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

AT AN INTERDISCIPLINARY RESEARCH CENTER

A Bard College upperclassman starting a business is recruiting fellow students for competitive unpaid internships. We are in need of talented individuals who can help to bounce around ideas and bring in some fresh creativity to a very young company. The Goodis Center is seeking students who can contribute to our efforts with intensive research on matters of social concern, coming from any approach of physical or social sciences, as well as artistic approaches. Clerical, non-profit, editing, web-design and other relevant experience a plus.

All students are invited to apply for internships. Qualified students will be given the opportunity to work independently. Set your own hours and level of commitment. Compensation offered in the form of professional reference, networking, publication opportunities, credit in publications, and more. No compensation or future opportunities guaranteed. Students may work from home, campus, or our private apartment & office.
